KEY SIGHTS

1 NICHOLAS GATE

One of the four gates built in 1822 – 1827 in Neo-Gothic style and located in the Western part of the fortress. The Nicholas gate is different from other gates as it has lateral chambers on both sides of the central passageway – in tsarist days they were used as guard and prisoner rooms.

2 ARTILLERY ARSENAL

It was built in 1831-1833 to the project by A.Shtaubert. In former times it was a place to store cannons, shells, blade weapons, yet in modern days it houses a contemporary art centre. The arsenal building is also a place for residences, a conference hall, and a café.

3 GUNPOWDER MAGAZINE OF THE 7TH BASTION

The gunpowder magazine in the yard of the 7th bastion was built in 1861. It was used to store gunpowder in special barrels. In 2022, the exhibition space “Martinsons House” was opened in the building. A recreation area with children’s playground is located nearby.

4 ENGINEER ARSENAL

The last building in the fortress built to design by architect Alexander Shtaubert in 1840 – 1845. It housed various master shops and warehouses. The Centre of Engineering and Industrial Design was opened here in 2022.

FORTIFICATIONS

Use thematic routes to visit and see a part of external fortifications. Follow indications on the map that you can receive at Daugavpils Fortress Culture and Information Centre (Nikolaja Street 5)

INFORMATION CENTRE

After finishing the renovation works in 2011, Daugavpils Fortress Culture and Information Centre was established in the former Water-lifting Tower building (1865 - 1866). Once this building ensured water supply system for the whole fortress. The vessel of 3000 buckets in volume located in the building was filled from three wells on the bank of the River Daugava using a steam-driven machine. The vessel has been preserved till nowadays in a very good condition, and currently it is a part of the industrial heritage of this building.

The centre offers the information on the fortress history, current events and development plans. Here one can view a small exposition presenting historical drawings, photos, military uniforms and artefacts that have been found in the fortress during previous years. The working office of the fortress administrator is also located in this building.

The centre also offers to book guided tours around the fortress. During the summer time, the Information Point is open in the corps de garde building near the Nicholas gate wooden bridge where everyone can receive the most important information on tourism offers in the Fortress.

EXHIBITION SPACE “MARTINSONS HOUSE”

3

The new sector of the Mark Rothko Art Centre was opened in the gunpowder magazine of the 7th bastion in 2022. The new exhibition space is devoted to the creative works of the well-known Latvian ceramist Pēteris Martinsons (1931–2013).

The collection by the outstanding artist born in Daugavpils consists of 340 pieces: 314 ceramic pieces and 24 ink drawings, they were all selected by the author and presented to the art centre in June 2013. Considerable part of the collection is presented in the gunpowder magazine.

The building of the gunpowder magazine (storage house) was erected in the yard of the 7th bastion in 1859–1861. Powder barrels were stored on wooden shelves situated in two rows under a massive brick vault. In 1948 – 1993, the building was used to store vegetables – huge concrete baths were used to pickle cabbage and cucumbers for the need of the military school.

In 2020–2021, with the funds of the European Union Cross-Border Cooperation Programme 2014 – 2020, the gunpowder magazine as well as the surrounding territory was renovated and improved.

ENGINEER ARSENAL

4

The impressive two-storey building of the engineer arsenal is built close to the Alexander gate from 1840 to 1845. The building is an architectural monument of State significance. The length of the Empire-style external façade of the three joint buildings is 275 m. Surface of the building is 7000 m<sup>2</sup>. The courtyard is 2000 m<sup>2</sup> large. The building has preserved its ramps (rampants) going from the yard to the second floor of the building. The engineer arsenal was used to make and repair armament supplies, tooling for fortification and combat engineer measures. The building housed paint, carpenter, wheel, turners, woodworking, locksmiths, casting, drawing, pattern and other shops.

During the Soviet years the building was used as job training workshops. Since 1993 the building is not used anymore and has started to deteriorate.

In 2019 – 2021, the West wing of the building was restored, while the North and East wings were conserved. Centre of Engineering and Industrial Design “Engineer Arsenal” (“Inženieru arsenāls”) will be opened in the West wing in autumn 2022.

FORTRESS PROMENADE

9

A river-bank promenade was created on the right bank of the River Daugava alongside the fortress citadel in 2021.

The total length of the promenade is around 1 kilometre, it goes on the upper level of the protection dam around the fortress.

The promenade begins in the place of a harbour where boats and floating bridge parts were kept in the 19th century, and ends near the historical water outlet where water is gathered from the entire citadel protective moat. It is possible to see the Fortress model in the harbour territory. In the central part of the promenade, everyone can see the original round-stone pavement that used to cover the whole protective dam and the passage till the floating bridge. Here also one of the historical wells is renovated that was used to pump water to the fortress water-main in the 19th century.

The fortress promenade is a great place for leisurely walks, to view fortress fortifications on both banks of the River Daugava, as well as to enjoy sunsets and slow flow of the river.

A car and bicycle parking spot is available at each end of the promenade.

COMMANDANT'S GARDEN

In the second half of the 19th century a garden was created in place of the former fortress square. In 1912, while celebrating the centennial anniversary of the victory over Napoleon, an unusual monument – a fountain made from three cast-iron large-calibre cannons – was erected in the centre of the garden.

On November 14, 1924, the monument devoted to the 44 soldiers from the 10th Aizpute infantry regiment of the Latvian Army killed during the Freedom Fights was opened in the Fortress garden. The monument was rebuilt during the Soviet times. After 1944, it was used as the base to Stalin's bust. In the 1950s, Lenin's bust was placed on it, yet later it was moved to another place. In 2017, the monument was restored.

Today the shady lanes of the fortress garden are a popular resting place. Restoration of the historical garden is foreseen during the following years.

FORTRESS CANNONS

12

Today history in the fortress territory is witnessed by historical large-calibre cannons. They were manufactured in the second half of the 19th century in an ordnance plant in Perm and in Obukhov steel casting plant (Russia). Two of the cannons are placed at the main entrance of the Commandant's house facing the fortress garden. Three cannons were used to create a monument – fountain in the very centre of the garden. The steel mortar gun (model of 1877) is placed on the “Wallgang” (a protected place on the upper part of a rampart) of the main rampart curtain between the Nicholas gate and the 7th bastion. One more steel cannon (model of 1887) is placed at the intersection of the streets Imperatora and Konstantīna. Since 2016, two steel barrels are set at the entrance of Mark Rothko Art Centre.

MUSEUM OF WORLD WAR I

The museum “At Commandant’s” (“Pie komandanta”) is the only such museum in Latgale. It presents a collection of original items and documents depicting the military week-day of the World War I. 14 In May 1822, the Lieutenant-General at the Prussian Royal Service Gustav von Rauch (1774 – 1841) visited the fortress; this was celebrated by placing a memorial stone in the curtain wall of the main rampart opposite to the 2nd bastion, this memorial stone is preserved till this day.

15 From 1827 to 1831, Wilhelm Küchelbecker (1797-1846), the well-known Decembrist and lyceum-time friend of Alexander Pushkin was pining in the walls of the fortress prison. Though nowadays it is not clear yet where exactly in the fortress W. Küchelbecker was kept, a memorial plate to him was set on the wall of the former Commandant's house.

16 In the territory of the former fortress cathedral the grave of the fortress commandant Grigory Pilenko (1817-1884) is located.

17 In 1942, the famous Tatar poet Musa Dzhaliil (1906-1944) was pining in the concentration camp "STALAG-340". A memorial plate in his remembrance was opened in the wall of the arch gate of the 7th semi contre-garde.

18 Daugavpils fortress is a place where participants of the suppressed Polish uprising (1863) were imprisoned and where the uprising leader Count Leon Plater (1836 – 1863) was sentenced to death. On June 9, 2013, the President of Latvia Andris Bērziņš and the President of Poland Bronisław Komarowski opened a monument devoted to him.

19 A memorial plaque dedicated to the Commander-in-Chief of the Latvian Army in the War of Independence of 1918-1920 General Janis Balodis was solemnly opened on January 27, 2020, on the facade of the house on the 1. oficieru Street, 2. He lived in this house in 1902-1904.

The large-scale interactive sculpture "Fortress Ghost" was created in 2017 during the II International Sculpture Symposium organized within the residence programme of Daugavpils Mark Rothko Art Centre. The sculpture is located in Nikolaja Street behind the Daugavpils Fortress Culture and Information Centre.

Fortification and military horses used to be the main part of military infrastructure, yet, with the development of military engineering, they became unnecessary practically at the same time. Usually the outcome of any war is not medals or notorious victories, it leads to broken and deformed lives. The authors of this sculpture link war with the photos of the World War I period that depict bandaged, wounded soldiers. That is exactly why "the ghost of the white horse is passive observant covered in bandages, and not running freely with its mane flying in the wind."

Authors: Egons Peršēvics, Ivonna Kalita, and Kaspars Čekotins
